Non-Fiction

Part poetry book, part scrapbook of recipes and facts, "A First Book of Nature" is a delightful way to begin to learn about the natural world, and is full of ideas for fun outdoor activities that children will enjoy, from beachcombing to baking a berry crumble. With lots to see in the richly-coloured spreads, this is a very special book to explore together and to treasure.

With the help of her animal friends, Marigold the tortoise guides young children through the pages of this interactive board book, where they visit a variety of gardens and practise counting up to ten.

Poetry

This book contains a selection of over forty nursery rhymes for you and your child to learn and sing together.

Nursery rhymes are a great way to develop your child's communication and language skills.

Bedtime Story

Little book lovers will enjoy the return of this curious owl and following her night-time discoveries and seeing what happens in the outside world when they fall asleep. The illustrations are as bold and stylish as always, and bring to life the midnight wildlife. With its gentle and soothing text, as well having something to count on every page, it's a perfect book to share at bedtime.
